The Chairman and the members, as well as Dean Wilcox and I, thought that he gave us the kind of information and in a fashion which I think the Director would be extremely pleased with. He was absolutely first-class. We all are appreciative enough that I wanted Mr. Colby to know."

Dear Bob:

Mr. Crane's letter of 19 November commenting on my briefing of 18 November is much appreciated.

I am not entirely clear, however, as to the proposed scope of the briefing which Mr. Crane requested in his letter of 20 November that we present to the Subcommittee on Intelligence and National Security on 2 December.

It was my impression that the briefing and charts we have provided to the Commission researchers and my classified and unclassified presentations to the Commission had covered the first two topics. If more is required, we will, of course, provide what you need.

Regarding budget data, you appreciate that the details of intelligence budgets are carefully protected by special arrangements in both the Executive and Legislative Branches.

Candidly, I am not clear on how these details will be helpful to the Commission, but if you and selected members require this coverage in the preparation of your report, I will provide you or selected commissioners the information on a restricted basis. [redacted] has relayed these sentiments to Fisher Howe, who has graciously consented to determine what the Commission's express wishes are. The more precise guidance you can give to us, the more helpful it will be.

The Honorable William Colby
Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Director:

Ambassador Murphy intends to convene the Commission's subcommittee on intelligence and national security again on December 2nd at the PFIAB Board Room. At that time, we would appreciate receiving a briefing on (a) the current organization of the intelligence community; (b) trends in resource management (including the implementation of the President's memorandum of November 5, 1971); and (c) budgetary review of the intelligence community.

We should like to set aside most of the morning for classified briefings. We are also inviting Admiral Anderson to provide any views he may have on these subjects and to especially review the executive branch oversight function, about which Commissioners have remaining questions.

At the same meeting we intend to consider unclassified papers on resource management by Mr. Macy, legal authorities by Mr. Harris, institutional framework of the community by Mr. Barnds, and several sections of the classified historical review prepared by Mr. Hitchcock and myself.

Kind personal regards.

Sincerely,

Kent B. Crane
Administrative Assistant
